Meet the CEO

Linda Ball
President and CEO

Linda Ball currently serves as the President and CEO of Central Maine Power (CMP), committed to putting people and customers first while advancing smart investments to strengthen Maine's energy grid and ensure long-term resilience, reliability, and modernization.

Linda has 30 years of experience in the energy industry with a strong foundation in customer service and operational leadership. She began her career as an entry-level customer service representative at CMP's sister company, New York State Electric and Gas, and has since held key roles in customer service and smart grid operations. Since 2012, Linda has been a driving force behind CMP's storm response and customer service improvements. She has led efforts that earned industry recognition, including an Edison Electric Institute Emergency Response Award, and has driven impactful initiatives to exceed regulatory performance metrics.
